

Name:

Date:

Fill in the missing words....

Following the failed 1798 rebellion, the English, in the year imposed on Ireland, what they called the "Act of Union".

The Irish Republican started to plan for a Rising. They began by setting up a council.

Initially the council was made up of Plunkett, Pádraig , and Eamonn Ceannt, who were later joined by Séan Mac Diarmada, Thomas Clarke, Thomas Mac Donagh and James .

Monday the 24th of April the is read out at the GPO. On Saturday the 29th of April, Pearse signs the notice. All the to the Proclamation were executed by firing squad.

Answer sheet

Following the failed 1798 rebellion, the English, in the year 1801 imposed on Ireland, what they called the "Act of Union".

The Irish Republican Brotherhood started to plan for a Rising. They began by setting up a military council.

Initially the council was made up of Joseph Plunkett, Pádraig Pearse, and Eamonn Ceannt, who were later joined by Séan Mac Diarmada, Thomas Clarke, Thomas Mac Donagh and James Connolly.

Monday the 24th of April the Proclamation is read out at the GPO. On Saturday the 29th of April, Pearse signs the Surrender notice. All the Signatories to the Proclamation were executed by firing squad.